Trends in Combating Fraud and Abuse in Substance Use Disorder Treatment

Partner Zachary Rothenberg provides his expert analysis of the current trends for combating fraud and abuse claims in substance use disorder (SUD) treatment.

From the article:

> The battle lines among SUD treatment providers, insurance companies and government payers, and local communities are still being defined. Until those lines have become sufficiently well-worn, compliance professionals would be wise to invest substantial time and effort in staying abreast of these and other developments in the treatment industry. Falling behind now can lead to painful, if not catastrophic, problems down the road.
