The Los Angeles Business Journal recently published the 2019 Top Law Firms to Work for in LA. Nelson Hardiman was added to the list citing the positive work-life balance, the impact the firm makes on a community service level, and the inclusion of attorneys and staff in firm-wide events and retreats.

"Beyond being blessed with an influx of work resulting from the transformation of U.S. healthcare, we have become an 'in-demand' place for healthcare lawyers to work," says Co-Founder and Managing Partner, Harry Nelson. In the past year alone, Vault ranked Nelson Hardiman in the Top 150 Firms under 150 lawyers nationwide, Best Lawyers listed Nelson Hardiman as a Tier 1 law firm for healthcare law and administrative/regulatory law, The Legal 500, one of the world's leading legal search directories, recommended Nelson Hardiman as one of the top healthcare law firms in the country, and Law360 ranked the firm in the Top 10 Best Law Firms for Minority Attorneys.

The Los Angeles Business Journal studied firms across the region to find firms that met their rigorous guidelines. Some factors include diversity and inclusion, innovative ways the firm excels in terms of workplace morale, and salary/bonus, benefits, and support programs offered.
