Reimbursement

Nelson Hardiman is a leader in reimbursement litigation for healthcare providers ranging from large hospitals to individual physicians. Because our talented litigators have a firm grasp on federal and state healthcare regulatory law, we frequently represent both providers who are suing to obtain payment and providers defending claims that they have been overpaid for health care services.

We are one of the most experienced firms in Southern California handling Medicare and Medi-Cal administrative proceedings. We litigate against insurance companies in state and federal court and in arbitration proceedings. We represent hospitals suing health plans and defend physician practices against reimbursement litigation by insurers. We obtain drastic reductions of overpayment claims, with a track record of success built on in-depth knowledge of the agencies, their reimbursement policies, and our integration of problem-solving skills and expert resources. While we fiercely litigate on behalf of healthcare providers, Nelson Hardiman also works hard to resolve disputes with federal healthcare programs and healthcare payors. We meet regularly with decision-makers and administrative agencies to reach consensus on reimbursement-related disputes.
