Aaron Lachant Quoted On ABC7

Partner Aaron Lachant was interviewed by ABC7 regarding Los Angeles's recent acceptance of license applications from marijuana growers and manufacturers.

From the Article:

> Cannabis industry attorney Aaron Lachant said the slow pace of licensing has crimped supplies, leaving a relatively small number of cultivators and manufacturers supplying storefronts across the state.
>
> In Los Angeles, retailers have turned to Northern and Central California to bring in products from licensed operators. Under state law, licensed retailers can only do business with other licensed companies.
>
> Without licensed growers and manufacturers in LA, "the retailers have had to figure out new supply relationships with licensees across the state," Lachant said.

Full Article