Recognized as a market-leading corporate strategist, Moshe Kupietzky provides business entities, entrepreneurs, and innovative companies with legal solutions to accelerate growth. Now focusing on the healthcare industry, Moshe applies his considerable knowledge in the areas of corporate and finance law to advise the lawyers in Nelson Hardiman's Transactions Group and their clients. He harnesses experience across a broad spectrum of industries to structure complex mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures, private equity purchases, strategic partnerships and consolidations, and related opportunities triggered by the burgeoning growth in healthcare markets.

Financial Strategies for Healthcare Providers

A leading corporate and M&A attorney with more than five decades of experience, Moshe balances legal prowess with finance-savvy knowledge of global transactions to spur growth for market leaders. He executes transactions deploying new and existing business models to craft cutting-edge solutions across multiple industry sectors. He represents:

- Buyers and sellers in multi-jurisdictional M&A transactions
- Investors and companies involved in strategic private placements and other business investment transactions
- Lenders and borrowers in secured and unsecured finance transactions
- Debtors and creditors in out of court restructuring transactions
- Boards of directors on corporate strategy and legal matters

A Wealth of Experience Solidifies Business Opportunities

From the time he graduated from Harvard Law School, near the top of his class, Moshe has leveraged his knowledge of corporate and finance law to develop innovative solutions and strategies to business entities of various forms. For most of his career, he led corporate legal teams for several large global law firms. He is widely recognized as a leading corporate M&A attorney as well as an expert in banking and finance law. Deeply insightful, Moshe is known for delivering strategic, innovative, and practical legal advice to buyers and sellers, investors and owners, boards of directors, and sources of financing for businesses and transactions of all sizes. He has strategized a plethora of diverse transactions, ranging from representing manufacturing and entertainment industry interests to negotiating licensing for a medical diagnostics developer and acquisition interest in a pharmacy benefits management company,

Corporate and Finance Leader a Valued Client Resource

Today, Moshe concentrates on helping clients adapt to a new era in healthcare. He works with the firm's healthcare law specialists to navigate the intersection of healthcare and corporate law, and mentors new lawyers to sustain the pipeline of legal talent needed to grow and innovate the highly regulated healthcare industry.

With Moshe at the helm, our transactions team can handle any issues arising from a merger, acquisition, or divestiture, providing an invaluable resource for our clients. He brings decades of experience and a legendary reputation as a "go to" lawyer, counseling buyers and sellers in major multi-jurisdictional transactions involving complex licensing agreements and regulatory issues. Moshe's deft representation of major national and international companies in strategic joint ventures and investments combined with his deep experience in financing and M&A transactions make him an exceptional addition to firm's transactions practice.
