PROFILE

An innovative attorney with a reputation for bringing people together and structuring complex transactions, Barry Kaye's entrepreneurial character and versatile skill set have allowed him to move deftly between law and business and weave a unique practice. Barry's professional experience and expertise includes intellectual property, corporate formation and governance and finance.

A Foundation in Intellectual Property and the Business of Law

Barry nurtured his early interest in IP law at Darby & Darby, one of the oldest intellectual property boutique firms in the United States. After graduating from law school, he clerked for U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hauk in Los Angeles where he worked behind the scenes on copyright and trademark infringement cases along with securities, insurance coverage and a host of other federal matters. Following his clerkship, Barry joined Hennigan, Mercer & Bennett in Los Angeles where, in addition being part of the team that successfully represented Orange County in their bankruptcy and securities litigation, he also worked on copyright and banking matters.

Barry is a regular conference speaker, and a member of the adjunct faculty at the University of California Berkeley School of Law (Boalt Hall) where he lectures on counseling corporate decision makers on the interaction of legal and business imperatives.
